SANDAG Summary by Terry Norwood:

FEBRUARY 2020

When I read the SANDAG newsletter and agendas for some of their committees, I find Rancho Bernardo is only a minor a part of the SANDAG plan. I was hoping that with the 5 Big Moves managed by a team called SD Forward in SANDAG, would give us more connections. Specifically, more direct connections so it would not take so long to get around our beautiful city. Escondido and the Ted William's transit centers are connected well. So what are the 5 Big Moves.... Complete Corridors, Transit Leap, Mobility Hubs, Flexible Fleets, and the Next OS – are transformative strategies that reimagine how our region will grow and how people and goods will get around.

The Regional Transportation Committee topics are pretty much that of the Big 5 Moves. The Community Base Organizations Committee topics are for community's that need extra assistance like grand food banks, major homeless issues, and educational resources to acquire jobs. Not that we don't have ANY of these issues in our area, our need is not great therefore we do not warrant a building for these services.

SANDAG AND NAVWAR are working exclusively with the Navy to potentially develop central mobility hub that would provide critical transit to the airport and connect all modes of regional transit," said SANDAG Director Ikhrata. This 72-acre property, near the airport similarly known as SPAWAR, includes new state-of-the-art NAVWAR facilities and a multi-modal transportation center, or central mobility hub. Additional uses for the site may include mixed-use retail, commercial, and residential development.

SANDAG Vanpool Program offers low or no-cost commutes to local military bases. The SANDAG Vanpool Program provides a comfortable, cost-effective, and convenient way for groups of five or more people to get to work in and around the San Diego region.
