San Diego, Cal., Aug. 11, 1890

To the Common Council
 Gentlemen,

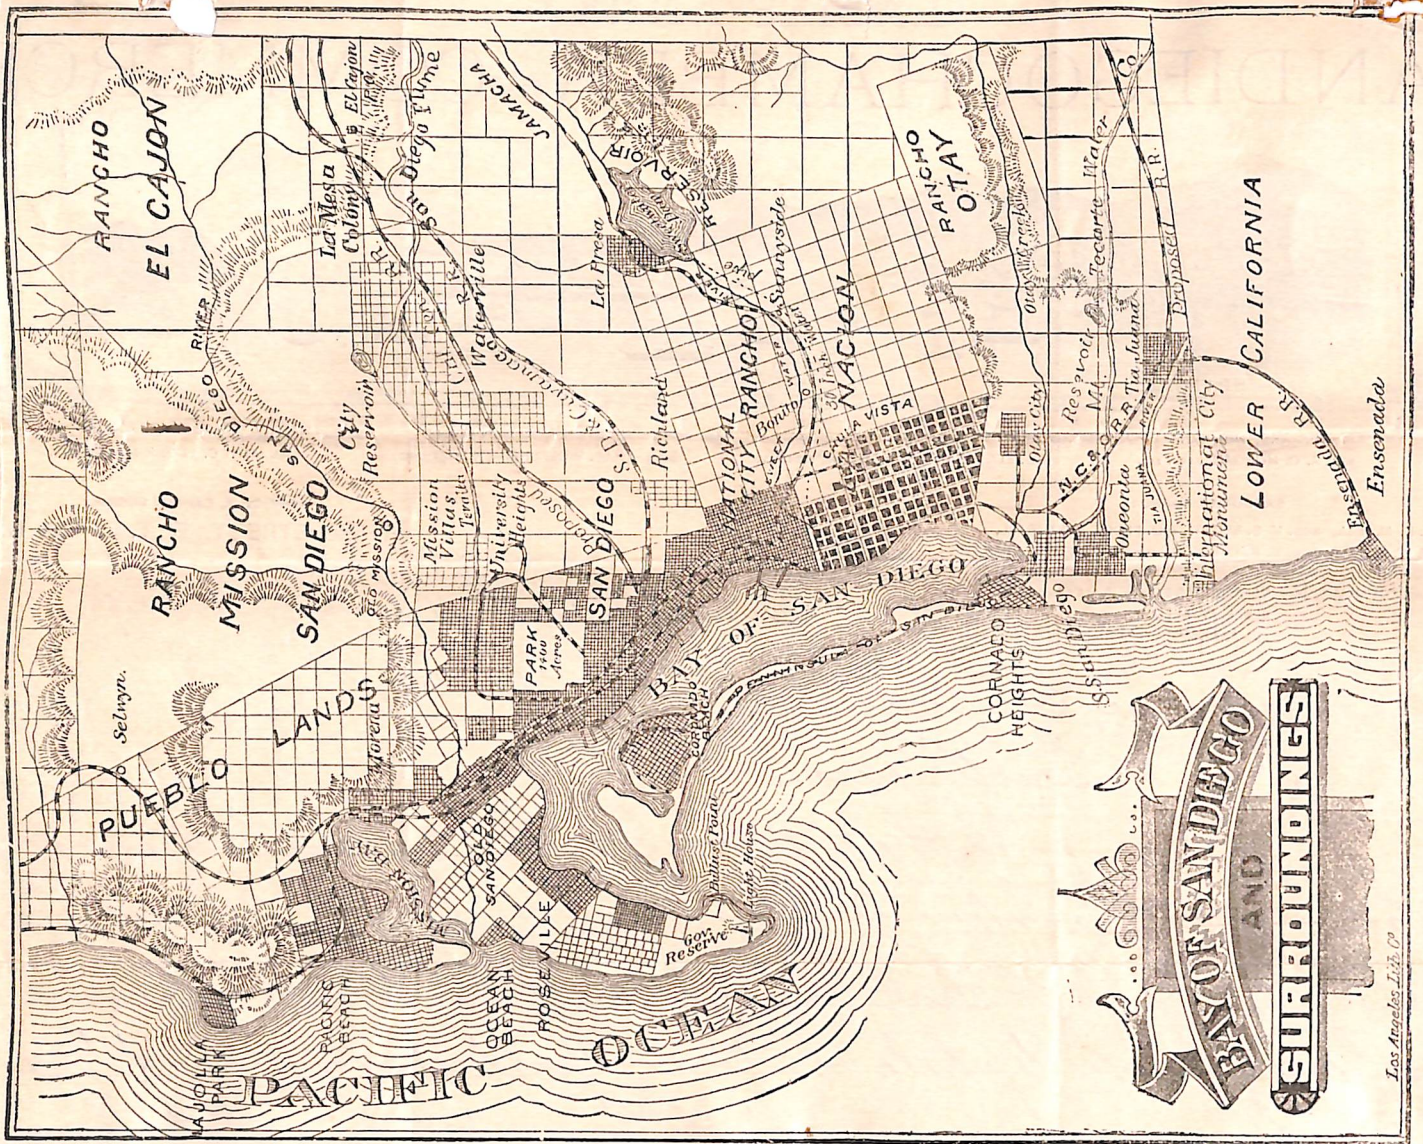

We the members of the Ladies' Annex to the San Diego Chamber of Commerce respectfully call your attention to the fact that the success of the 'Market Square' can never be established while vendors of produce are allowed to supply families by going from house to house, and feeling that the accomplishment of this is of great importance both to the city and county of San Diego.

We therefore, most respectfully petition your honorable body to pass an ordinance requiring all vegetable gardeners and all dealers in other merchandise, such as butter, eggs, poultry, fish &c. who dispose of the same by going from house, to go to the 'Market Square' and place their goods on sale until nine o'clock A.M. and impose a fine for refusing to comply with the same.

Respectfully submitted

The Ladies' Annex to the San Diego Chamber of Commerce.

SAN DIEGO COUNTY presents a greater variety of resources, than perhaps any other county in Southern California. Its hill-sides and up-lands produce oranges, lemons, olives and all other semi-tropical and deciduous fruits of superior quality, while its valleys bring forth small fruits and grapes, especially raisin grapes, in all their excellence, as well as cereals, and flowers, all the year round. Its mountains furnish water-sheds for reservoirs, and its systems of irrigation are pronounced marvels of engineering. The noted Waukesha water near the city of San Diego furnishes the most delightful beverage in California.

Its mineral products consist of gold, silver and all the baser metals, as well as coal, fire clay, marble, asbestos, lime, iron and cement. Some of these minerals, as well as many fine agricultural lands, can not be developed profitably, on account of the lack of transportation, but several transcontinental lines of railroads, now in contemplation, will soon afford ample additional facilities for their development.

Its semi-tropical climate is tempered by sea breezes, hence there is no extreme heat in summer, nor heavy frost in winter, making it the most even and healthful climate in the world. The scenery around the city and harbor is picturesque in the extreme. To the west of the city the Promontory of Point Loma, with its light house, looms up in majestic grandeur, and directly east of it lies the beautiful peninsula of Coronado, with its unsurpassed sea side hotel Del Coronado, its beautiful avenues and its lovely homes, only six minutes distant by Ferry from San Diego's shore, while south and east of San Diego, National City, Chula Vista, Otay and South San Diego encircle the beautiful panorama around San Diego Bay. A deep water front of over twenty miles affords abundant room for the maritime commerce of the world.

The CITY OF SAN DIEGO, from a mere village of less than 4000 inhabitants three years ago, now numbers at least 30,000 in population. It has a number of magnificent business blocks and palatial residences, about 42 miles of horse car lines and steam motors, running to Pacific Beach, National City, Otay, Tia Juana and around the Bay to the great Hotel Del Coronado. Its pioneer cable line four miles in length, is just being completed, and other lines no doubt will be built immediately.

Home-seekers can find in San Diego and San Diego County the most delightful conditions for health and comfort, while the settler can produce more with less labor than in any other country. The bay of San Diego being several hundred miles nearer to eastern markets than any other on the Pacific Coast, must become one of the most important sea ports, on the completion of the Nicaragua Canal, in the near future.
