

Tribute To Leadership

The late Laurence M. Klauber who died in San Diego this week at the age of 84 is an outstanding example of what a citizen can do to constantly improve himself, his community and nation.

Mr. Klauber could have rested on his laurels of success as a business executive—either before or after retirement. Fortunately for everyone, he chose not to do so.

For more than a half century Mr. Klauber instead gave freely of his tremendous intelligence and energy for betterment of San Diego. The results are clearly visible.

The momentum of progress that Mr. Klauber set in motion before his death will continue for many years.
